

AI killed the Search Bar Star

I'd say the difference though is that the internet is more like having access to a library, the knowledge and information is there but you have to navigate it and understand it in a way that makes sense to you.

AI-assisted learning is like having an expert in the subject right next to you, fully attentive and doing everything in their power to help you understand the material in a way that makes sense to you.

For the same reason tutoring is still extremely prevalent even with the internet, everyone learns in different ways, and being able to ask immediate follow-up questions to any information or process is invaluable. That's the true game-changer of AI in education imo.

To me google feels like looking at a black and white newspaper that has 80% ads and it's top story is why today's kids are too lazy to use it anymore.#ai
