

poems / The Ghosting Hypocrite

"He stopped replying,
can you believe,
Didn't even say he had to leave!
No goodbye or reason at all...
The nerve of that guy,
what gall!"

Yet just a week ago,
you plainly ghosted
A suitor who your interest boasted.
You left his texts seen
but unanswered,
His eager hopes completely bantered.
"That creep was so annoying
and attached,
I had to cut ties,
my patience dispatched!"
The excuse rolls quickly off your tongue,
But for others,
ghosting seems so wrong.
My friend,
we can't have double standards,
Judging others
but making our own pardons.
Let's end the ghosting,
make a new decree,
And treat all with civility.
Have the strength to send a thoughtful goodbye,
The reward will be karma sweet as pie.
Be upfront, reject with gentle compassion,
Then hypocrisy loses its traction!

Newer

Older

Saturday, 12th August 2023
A Closed Mind

Saturday, 12th August 2023
Connoisseur of Profound Disco...

Jins © 2022-2025

Tags RSS feed

Made with Montaigne and bigmission 